

I didn't write the text below myself, but I agree with it completely. I add my personal comment here, that nothing could be a more clear perversion of the notion that the airwaves are a public trust, to be licensed but not owned by corporations and private citizens. Please do what you can to remind Sinclair of the terms of its license. Thank you.

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
